RAILWAY NOTES AND DIARIES

Pearce Higgins began to make notes and observations on railway matters in the early 1920s. At first these consisted largely of lists of engine names and numbers collected at his home at Worcester, and at school at Knowle and Malvern, but the later notes became more varied and deal with a wide range of subjects and locations. They are particularly interesting for the period of the Second World War.

The notes and diaries have been divided into two series. The first consists largely of diaries written up from rough notes. It begins in 1922, when Pearce Higgins was eleven years of age, although most of the early volumes were compiled at a later date. Coverage is good for the period to 1944 but there are gaps, notably for 1924, 1934 and 1937. After 1944 coverage is only intermittent. The second series comprises rough notes and jottings. Most of these were used in the compilation of the main series of diaries but not all were copied up and these rough notes can be used to cover gaps in the main series. At the end of the second series is a group of loose notes and notebooks which are either unidentified or cover a mixture of subjects.

In addition to these general notes and observations, Pearce Higgins also compiled volumes on specific railways which are listed in a later section of the catalogue.

RESEARCH AND WORKING PAPERS

Most of the papers in this section were compiled by Pearce Higgins as part of his PhD studies at the University of Leicester. He first registered as a part-time student at Leicester in 1971 with the intention of producing his thesis on the subject of the era of 'contractors' railways in Britain between the years 1855 and 1875. This proved to be too wide an area to cover and he later restricted his studies to the question of railway finance and fraud in the 1860s. Despite carrying out a great deal of research he did not complete the work, although he did produce several drafts of the chapter on the subject of Lloyd's Bonds.

Also included in this section is a series of files marked "Research" or "Current" and containing notes and papers on a variety of topics. The files contain photocopied material from publications of 1850s - 1880s and SPH's correspondence.

SOCIETIES AND PRESERVATION

Pearce Higgins was a member of numerous clubs and societies concerning railways and transport history and he also took a serious interest in the railway preservation movement. He played an active role in a number of them including the Railway Preservation Society, Industrial Railway Society and Industrial Locomotive Society. He served on the committee of the Corris Railway Society for a number of years and was a member of the Museum General Advisory Group (and also later of the Transport Advisory Group) of the Ironbridge Gorge Museum Trust from 1969 to 1979.

This part of the catalogue has been divided into three sections. The papers of a number of societies will be found in later parts of the catalogue either because society papers overlap with general papers on the same railway subject or because it is felt to be a more appropriate place for them. These include Corris Society, Festiniog Railway Society, Welshpool and Llanfair Light Railway Preservation Society and Irish Railway Record Society.

RAILWAY AND TRAMWAY PAPERS

This part of the catalogue has been divided into four basic sections. The first deals with light railways and tramways in general. The second section contains papers of the larger railway companies, joint and junction lines, the four grouping companies and British Railways. The third section contains company and light railway papers, together with more general papers, and is arranged on a geographical basis. The final section deals with the papers of the War Department, Railway Clearing House, Railway Passengers Assurance Company and other similar bodies.

EARLY LOCOMOTIVES AND LOCOMOTIVES BUILDING

Pearce Higgins was well-known for his interest in locomotives and locomotive building. This part of the catalogue has been divided into three sections. The first contains general papers including material concerning early locomotives and industrial locomotives and systems. The second deals with locomotive building beginning with general papers and followed by material concerning individual builders arranged in alphabetical sequence. The final section deals with the papers of rolling stock builders.
